General Email

GREETING

Start your email with a "Hello," "Dear," or "Good Morning/Afternoon," then address the person you are writing to with the proper title and/or name. Avoid starting with overly casual words, such as, "Hey" or "Hi." For example:

Dear, Ms. Meredith Tomabene,
Hello, Professor Streissguth,
Hello, Mr. Rapoza,

Good Morning, Dr. Ford,
Good Evening, Mx. Fahey,

CONTENT

Share your main point first, then include supporting content to provide context that is clear and to the point. Emails should be brief, and multi-paragraphed, for ease of interpretation.

In addition to the sample included, you can look throughout this guide to see other examples of tone and structure for effective, professional email content.

FGLE=2 If you have websites, Google docs, slides, etc, to attach/link to the email, hyperlink when possible. You can embed the content by highlighting the text and then selecting the INSERT LINK option in the email and pasting in the URL to outside material. In the end, your email looks cleaner without long URLs, makes understanding easier for readers, and shows respect for their time.

CONCLUSION

Wrap up the email by reinforcing/restating your main point and restating your question/recommendation/request, etc.

CLOSING

Close your email with an appropriate signoff. This lets the reader know you are finished with your outreach.

Sincerely,
Best,

Best Regards,
Thank you,

Hello Dr./Ms./Mr./Mx. [Name of person],

I hope all is well! How have things been with you and [the person's company, organization, or personal interest]?

I'm reaching out because I am applying to the [name program] at [university name], and would so appreciate including you on my list of recommendations, if you're willing. I thought of you because [ways in which your relationship has been instrumental in your personal and professional development/choice of attending graduate school], and you could speak to my [key skills and abilities needed in the program].

I've attached my current resume and here is a link to the description of the program for your reference. If you are willing to provide a reference, please email me at [email address]. Thank you!
